CAPLAND FAMILY

1. Thomas Copeland, born in County Down Ireland circa 1730. He married Jane Russell, born in County Down, Ireland in 1732 and died August 31, 1815. She came to United States with her son Hugh Copeland and lived with him until her death. She is buried in the Graham Cemetery in Hancock County, Illinois.

Descendants of Thomas and Jane Russell Copeland:

2. Thomas Copeland, born in County Down, Ireland, Sept. 15, 1810, died Sept. 15, 1872. He married Eleanor Russell, who was born in County Down, Sept. 2, 1810, and died March 27, 1894. They moved from Ireland to Hancock County, Illinois, where they lived most of their lives. They are both buried in the Graham Cemetery.

Descendants of Thomas and Eleanor Russell Copeland:

I. Hugh Copeland, who lived in Keokuk, Iowa. No children.

II. Ellen Copeland, married James Major and lived all her life in Hancock County, Illinois. Had several children.

III. Jane Copeland, married Garrett Bentley, died Feb. 17, 1911. Had one daughter.

3. Hugh Copeland, born in County Down Ireland, Jan. 31, 1833. He married Eliza Knight, born in County Down, Jan. 14, 1833. After graduating from the University of Liverpool, he returned to Ireland and they were married Jan. 5, 1853. They visited the Giant Causeway on their wedding trip.

They came to America in 1849, the year of their marriage and settled first in Allegheny, Pennsylvania, where their daughter Jane was born November 11, 1849. They moved from there to Ohio and then to Illinois, settling in Hancock County, where their relatives, the Robert Graham family had been living since 1827. (See Graham genealogy) Mr. Copeland, for awhile, ran a grist mill at Elvanston, Ill. Here their second child, Maria Elizabeth was born in a log cabin, January 28, 1856. They soon moved to Keokuk, Iowa, where Mr. Copeland resumed his regular work of architect and builder.

Mrs. Eliza Knight Copeland died in Keokuk, July 30, 1873. In 1881, Mr. Copeland married Mary Jane Hill of Keokuk, she was born June 24, 1873 and died February 13, 1893. Shortly after his second marriage they moved to Chicago, where except for a brief time in Cedar Rapids, they lived the rest of their lives. In June 1889, he married a third time, Sarah Gillespie of Pittsburg, Pa. He died Oct. 12, 1899.

He was a Presbyterian of the old school, and all of his life refused to belong to any church which sang anything but the Psalms and had no instrumental music on the Sabbath Day. While living in Keokuk, Iowa, he was only five miles from the Missouri state line, and during the civil war there were many exciting times. He belonged to the Home Guard and was a staunch abolitionist.

Mr. Copeland and his first and second wives are buried in the Graham Cemetery on the farm of his son-in-law, Albert Townsend Graham, near West Point, Hancock County, Ill. Also buried there are his mother, brother and his family, both of his daughters and their husbands.

Mr. Copeland had two daughters by his first wife, Eliza Knight Copeland. There were no other children.

Descendants:

1. Jane Copeland, born Nov. 11, 1849, married Albert Townsend Graham. (See Graham Genealogy)

2. Amanda Elizabeth Copeland, born at Evanston, Ill., Jan. 25, 1856, married Frank Woodbridge Brown December 29, 1875, died Oct. 22, 1925. Frank Woodbridge Brown was born in Quincy, Ill., Feb. 18, 1850, where his family was among the first settlers of Quincy. He was the son of George Wilbur Brown and Lucy Rose Brown. They moved to Chicago in 1860 and lived there and in Oak Park the rest of their lives.

Descendants of Frank Woodbridge Brown and Amanda Copeland Brown:

1. Frank Woodbridge Brown, born in Keokuk, Iowa, Oct. 15, 1876. Married Helen Catherine Merriam, June 16, 1909. Later married Mae Seegesser of Waukegan, Indiana, July 2, 1910. No children.

2. Hugh Wilbur Brown, born Dec. 25, 1878. Married Alice May Culver, Dec. 1, 1903. They were born at Tarkenton, Ill., June 11, 1875. They had one son.

Descendants:

Donald Woodbridge Brown, born in Oak Park, Ill., April 9, 1906. Married Eleanor Clark of Hempstead, Long Island, July 1, 1932.

Children:

I. Judith, born August 11, 1910

II. Louise Wade, born Jan. 4, 1916.

3. Lucy Eliza Brown, born in Keokuk, Iowa, March 21, 1880.

4. Ethel Rose Brown, born in Chicago, August 14, 1882. Married October 31, 1902, Everett Cornelius Dekker, formerly of Keokuk and Zahn, Holland. He died June 3, 1913.

5. Dwight Mary Brown, born in Glenwood, Ill., August 17, 1884, died July 2, 1936.

6. Donald Brown, born in Chicago, November 17, 1890, died March 9, 1922.

7. Helen Dalley Brown, born in Chicago, November 1, 1893. Married 1st, Capt. J. 1914, Lester Daniels of Oak Park, Ill. He died Nov. 10, 1918. Married 2d, Elmer John Kruse, Oct. 22, 1921. He was born in Chicago Oct. 28, 1896, son of Henry and Augusta Kruse.

Descendants of Helen Dalley and Elmer John Kruse:

1. Miller Dwight Kruse, born in Oak Park, Ill., Sept. 17, 1912. Married Mary Leone Solvert, April 20, 1940. She is the daughter of Lee Lemelin and Bernice Irene Hammond Solvert of Oak Park. She was born Aug. 21, 1924.

2. Barbara Louise Kruse, legally adopted, born in Chicago, November 5, 1929. She married George Patrick Stallings, February 7, 1948. He was born April 4, 1928 in Durham, North Carolina.

3. Howard Judson Brown, born in Chicago, Sept. 1, 1924.

GRAHAM FAMILY

Robert Graham was born in 1775 in County Down, Ireland, and came to America, settling in Pleasant Hill, Delaware around 1809. He was married twice, both marriages taking place in Ireland. Nothing is known of his first wife. They had one son, James, born in Ireland, October 11, 1801.

Robert Graham's second wife was a widow, Mrs. Catharine Russell Marshall. She was born October, 1776 in County Down Ireland, and had no children by her first marriage. She was married to Robert Graham, February 8, 1803. Her sister, Jane Russell, married Thomas Copeland. (See Copeland genealogy) Robert and Catharine Graham had ten children all of whom were born in the United States.

In 1837 the family moved to Hancock County, Illinois. Their first winter was spent in a pole shanty with a dirt floor, near Denver Ill. The house was heated by coals taken from a fire just outside the door, put into a kettle and set in the middle of the floor. The next year the family moved into a two story log cabin built by their son, Thomas Graham, on the site of the present Graham farm.

Robert Graham lived to be 87 years old, passing away November 27, 1862. His wife, Catharine Russell, died January 26, 1852, aged 76 years. They are both buried in the cemetery on the Graham farm.

Child of Robert Graham and his first wife:

James Graham, born in Ireland, October 11, 1801, and came to the United States with his father. When the Mormons settled at Nauvoo in Hancock County, he became interested in Mormonism, and in 1847, when the Mormons were driven out of Hancock County, he went with them to Utah. Little was heard of him afterward, except that he had become an influential member of the Mormon Church, and in 1853 was sent on a mission to Australia.

Children of Robert and Catharine Graham:

1. Elizabeth Graham, born March 10, 1809.

2. Francis Graham, born May 10, 1810, married Mary Ann Williams

Children: Frances Graham, born---, married 1st, Hiram Simmons; 2d, James Hughes. No children.

3. Margaret Graham, born November 22, 1811, married Thomas Daw.

Children: Ellen, born---, married Tiffany Roseberry.

4. Ann, born June 6, 1813, married Samuel Fleming. They moved to California in 1853, where their descendants still live.

Children:

I. Thomas Fleming, born---, m.---

Children: Samuel Fleming, Robert Fleming, Dallas Fleming.

II. Albert C. Fleming, born 1841, married Elizabeth Agnes Higgins, 1868, died September 1903.

III. Charles E. Fleming, born---, married---

Children: Stella Fleming Fox; Clara Fleming Reier, died August 1932.

IV. William Fleming, born---, married---

Children: Mary Edith Fleming, William Fleming and Worth(?) Fleming.

V. Clara, born---, married J. T. Bevan.

Children: Anna Bevan Trezevant, Eleanor Fleming, died---, Miriam Bevan Bryan.

5. Mary Graham, born Feb. 3, 1815, died Feb. 20, 1815.

6. Thomas Graham, born March 3, 1816, married Mary Jane Fleming, Feb. 18, 1841, died June 28, 1894. (For further details see next sheet)

7. Mary Jane Graham, born Sept. 19, 1817, married William Moore.

Children: Thomas Moore, married Amanda Dawson; William Moore, married 1st, Alice Tweed; Nathan Moore.

8. Sarah Graham, born May 11, 1819.

9. Robert Graham, born Feb. 11, 1821, died June 30, 1825.

The first part of the paper discusses the importance of the study of the history of the United States. It is argued that a knowledge of the past is essential for a full understanding of the present. The author then goes on to discuss the various factors that have shaped the development of the United States, including the role of the government, the influence of the economy, and the impact of the culture. The paper concludes by suggesting that a study of the history of the United States is not only a valuable academic exercise, but also a necessary one for anyone who wishes to understand the world in which we live.

10. John Graham, born June 9, 1824, died June 14, 1825.

Thomas Graham, 6th child of Robert and Catharine Graham, was born March 3, 1816 at Pleasant Hill, Delaware. When 21 years old, in 1837, he moved with his parents to Hancock County, Illinois. During their first hard winter, Thomas Graham was getting ready the material for a two story log cabin, every part of which was made by his own hands from timber on the farm. He split flat rails from black walnut and dressed the boards for the doors and sashes for the windows. The floors were made of white oak boards which were called puncheons and dressed to make a smooth floor. This was the first two story house in this part of the country, and was considered quite a curiosity. One woman walked five miles to see it, and said that she "wouldn't sleep so high up for anything".

This house was built on the 160 acres which was the original Graham farm. One acre was deeded by Thomas Graham for the building of a Free Will Baptist church and cemetery. This church was built in 1850, the neighbors getting together and all helping to build it. When completed the church was called St. Albans Free Will Baptist Church. Rev. Sewall of Hamilton, Ill. presided at the organization.

Thomas Graham married Mary Jane Fleming, Feb. 18, 1841, riding horse back 35 miles to Quincy, Ill., where they were married. Mrs. Thomas Graham was the daughter of Thomas and Hannah Carlisle Fleming. Thomas Fleming was born in north Ireland, and his wife in West Chester, Pennsylvania, June 9, 1819. Their daughter was born there, moving in 1838 with her parents to Hancock County, Ill. She taught school at Plymouth, Ill. until her marriage in her twenty second year. In 1858, the present Graham home was built of bricks made from clay on the farm. The house was on the then stage coach road from Carthage to Quincy. The post office was a mile and a half north on the same road, and was called Rough and Ready Post Office.

Thomas Graham was in Carthage the day Joseph Smith, the Mormon leader, was shot, but noticing the tense uneasiness and the number of men around town, he feared something would happen and left early for town. But just as he left he heard shots and was soon overtaken by a friend who said that both Joseph and his brother Hiram had been shot and were "deader than the devil". Thomas Graham was active for the Union cause during the Civil war. He died June 28, 1894, aged 78 years. His wife, Mrs. Mary Fleming Graham, died February 15, 1876, aged 56 years.

Children of Thomas and Mary Jane Fleming Graham:

1. Amanda Graham, born May 29, 1842, died August 23, 1886.

2. Albert Townsend Graham, born December 19, 1844. (For further details, see below)

3. Thomas Augustus, born July 27, 1853, died September 6, 1854.

4. Charles Homer Graham, born July 31, 1858, married Matilda Basham, October 20, 1880, died 1922. Mrs. Charles Graham, died August 1947.

Children:

II. Katherine Ethel, born November 23, 1886. She went as a missionary to Japan around 1915, and there married Rev. Carroll Whitener of North Carolina. They returned to United States in 1924, later serving as missionaries to the Pueblo Indians. During the recent war, Rev. Whitener served Japanese translator for the government at Los Angeles.

Children: Philip Whitener; Charles Whitener; Louise Whitener.

III. Helen Basham Graham, born Sept. 20, 1897, married Lester Welty of Galesburg, Ill.

Albert Townsend Graham, 2d child of Thomas and Mary Jane Fleming Graham, was born December 19 1844. He married Jane Copeland, Sept. 28, 1882. She was the daughter of Hugh and Eliza Knight Copeland of Keokuk, Iowa. (See Copeland genealogy)

 Mr. Graham lived in the old Graham home on what had been named the Edgewood Stock Farm, where for many years he raised registered trotting horses. He was also president of the West Point Bank, and an outstanding leader in the community. He died March 20, 1937 in his ninety-third year. His wife, Mrs. Jane Copeland Graham, died June 13, 1925.

Children of Albert Townsend and Jane Copeland Graham:

1. Harry Thomas Graham, born July 6, 1883, married Edyth Phoebe Wiggle. She was born December 14, 1890 the daughter of Rev. Robert Wiggle, a Congregational minister, who was born and raised in England. Harry and Edith Graham were married October 15, 1918.

Children: Dorothy Jane Graham, born Nov. 1, 1919, married May 1946, Jack Watson of near Johnstown, Pennsylvania. They both served in the war, she as a WAC, and he as a lieutenant in the army.

Children: Peggy Lynn Watson; Jack Watson.

2. Eleanor Harriet Graham, born September 15, 1922, married May 30, 1947, John Gogley of Gary Ind.

3. Robert Thomas Graham, born June 13, 1925.

ERRATA

In volume 2, Jewett Family of America, by F. Jewett, Eunice Orcutt and Emma Orcutt are confused.

Eunice Orcutt married Dwight Jewett (#9774) and Emma Jewett married Joseph Jewett (#9878), son of Dwight.

I knew Dwight Jewett (my great-grandfather) and Joseph and Emma very well.

THE BURNING OF NORWALK

The Captain in the Cask

As a matter of local as well as general historical interest we publish by request the following letter, written about forty years ago by Thomas R. Whitney, an uncle of our townsman, John E. Whitney. It gives a detailed account of the doings of Captain David Whitney, the great-great grandfather of John E. Whitney, during the trying times of the burning of Norwalk.

"I remember your 'granfer,' very well," said my friend, the old Corporal, one evening, "his name was David - David W. - and he owned and commanded a sloop that performed great services for the Continental government in carrying dispatches and supplies under the very guns of the British ships. They suspected him, too, and tried fifty different ways to catch him doing something for the government, but he always managed to elude them. I recollect one time when the Cap'n had some dispatches or papers or something to take to New York. He

He started, and got as far down as Sheffield's Island, and got becalmed there, so he dropped anchor just at night to wait for a breeze. There were two British ships lying at anchor about three miles off, outside the island, but they saw his manoeuvre with the spy glass and determined to catch him, for they knew his sloop just as well as they did their own colors.

Well, just after daylight next morning, the Cap'n was roused out of his birth by the mate, who told him that two boats were coming towards them from the British ships. He jumped up and saw them coming about a mile off. It was too late to escape, so he jumped into a tierce lying on the deck and told the men to head him up in it, and tell the British that he was up home. He had all the papers in his pocket and the men didn't know anything about that, and they headed him up as directed, and waited for the boats. Presently they came with about thirty sailors and marines, all armed, under command of a lieutenant.

They boarded the sloop, and with oaths demanded the Captain, swearing that if they could catch him, they would shoot him on the spot. But the men, true to instructions, made strange of the whole matter; they said the Captain weren't aboard, and told them that they could search the sloop if they chose. And they did search. Everything was turned topsy-turvy looking for the Cap'n and the papers, or something that would betray what the sloop was doing - even the old cask in which he was headed up was rolled and kicked about the deck, but nobody pretended to notice it, and at last, after searching every corner and hole of the vessel, and throwing everything into confusion, without finding anything that they looked for, they went off again, swearing that they'd catch him yet. The Cap'n heard all they said, and he's told me many a time that he felt mighty streaked till he heard 'em shove off again. When they were fairly away the men knocked out the head of the cask, and let him out again, and soon after, with a spanking breeze from the north, he put up sails and started, well knowing he would outrun any boat they could send after him.

Your great granf'er lived on Fort Point about a mile below the bridge, and you may be sure that when that rascal Tryon burnt the town, his house did not escape. You can see the stone work of the cellar where the house stood down there now; it is on the point just off against Old Well. Sometime after that his son, John E. Whitney's great grandfather, Ebenezer, your old "granfer", bought a place up in the huckleberry hills and the old man, who was nigh about sixty years old, went and lived with him. Ebenezer served as a lieutenant in one of the continental companies.

When the British came to destroy the town, the old man ran a good deal of risk and did a good deal of good. It was sometime in July, 1779. They came over from Huntington on Long Island side, just to burn up a helpless, harmless village, that hadn't more than two hundred men in it, except the tories - drat the rascals! They did all the mischief by showing the enemy the way. Well, the British came up the harbor to Gregory's Point, or Fitch's Point, I forget which, and there they landed just after dark. The people saw them coming before dark, and they knew pretty well that their town was going to share the same fate as Fairfield and Danbury had a short time before, and everything was in consternation. The people ran hither and thither - got up their teams and filled the carts and wagons with furniture, and put the children on the loads, while the men and women went on foot, all carrying what they could in their hands and on their backs to save them from the threatened conflagration. All that long and tedious night the wretched people toiled without sleep or rest, hurrying to save their movable property, and leaving their houses a prey to the ruthless destroyer; right glad were they indeed to escape with their lives and what little they could carry.

When the British landed, old Captain Whitney was at home, and his sloop lay anchored in the creek; and thinking they would all march up the road about half a mile from his house, on the east side where they had landed he sent word to all the neighbors near by, and told them to bring their families and furniture down to his sloop, and he would take them all safe out of the harbor, as soon as the British left the Point. So, sure enough, down they came, five or six families, with ox-carts, loaded down with furniture, and the captain and all on 'em were hard at work all night loading the sloop. He was so busy, I've heard tell, helping others that he didn't get half of his own things on board, or out of his house; and it was some time after daylight when they all got through; and then he had enough to do watching his chance to get out with his sloop, without attending to anything else - for the British had already started on the way to the village.

Everything promised fair for his escape.

There was a nice breeze blowing right down the creek, and they could distinctly see the troops from the Point as they marked away towards the road, yet he did not venture to hoist his sail for fear of being discovered, until he was sure they were all gone.

Long before sunrise the main body of the British troops had left the place where they had landed and were on their way to the village; but still a great many as it appeared to them, remained on the beach, and to attempt to run past them down the beach would be madness, for they had a great many boats and being armed they would surely capture the sloop if it should attempt to go out. But the captain and his affrighted neighbors were not kept long in suspense, for to their horror they saw the remaining troops enter their boats and begin rowing directly up the creek towards them.

This was a maneuver that the old man hadn't expected, and he began to fear that he had betrayed his neighbors to certain destruction instead of serving them; but he was a man who always made the best of what he had to do with, and in a few minutes his mind was made up. He ordered every man, woman and child to go below among the furniture, except his cook, (who was a negro) and told 'em to keep out of sight and be silent till he sent for 'em. As many as could went into the cabin, and the rest got into the hold, over which he placed the hatches; then he lit his pipe and set his negro to cleaning the deck, so as to appear as though he had no intention of sailing for a week.

These arrangements were scarcely made before the first boats of the British had got up to near where the sloop was lying, but as he expected, instead of coming to the Point, they rowed to Old Well, on the other side of the creek, and as he had laid there so quietly they had hardly noticed him or his craft, though they were not more than a hundred yards from him. Up they came, boat after boat, until he counted about three hundred red-coats, all of whom landed at Old Well. Now and then some of 'em would call out to him and call him a d----- Yankee, or something like that, but he pretended not to notice 'em, and finally they were all landed and began their march to meet the main body, up at the bridge, leaving behind about a dozen soldiers to guard the boats. This was an hour of terrible suspense to the Captain, for besides the fear of being taken the tide was falling, and his sloop was almost aground then.

When those who had gone were fairly on the road and out of sight he spoke to the mate who was in the cabin, and told him to bring up the flag. Besides the mate and the negro cook, he had but one hand aboard, so he called him on deck, and as everything had been made ready before hand, up went his mainsail and jib in a jiffy.

The guard hailed him from the other side, demanding why he had hoisted sail. He told them as the sun was up he wanted to dry them. They ordered him to haul them down, but he said he could not spare the time just then, and as he said this he stepped on the quarter deck and went to the tiler, telling the hands to "up anchor." It didn't take three minutes to get the anchor out of the mud, but while they were doing it the guards swore they'd shoot him if he attempted to go out. He said he hoped they wouldn't but kept on getting ready, and as soon as his vessel was afloat he ran up the American flag, filled away toward them, as he had to do to get into the channel, and as he swept by them within fifty yards he gave three cheers for George Washington and the Continental Congress, while the bullets were whistling thro his sails.

Some of them on finding that he was determined to go out, jumped into one of the boats to board him, but they were too late; he was fairly under way and went down the creek and out of the harbor with the flag of his country flying at the mast head.

Poor fellow! with all his bravery he went out of the harbor that time with a sad heart. As soon as he got out of reach of danger he called his neighbors up from their confinement in the cabin and hold of the sloop, and they reached the deck just in time to see the first smoke of the incendiary curling up from the late dwelling of their benefactor. The infamous Britons, exasperated at his triumphant escape from their clutches, had vented their anger by setting fire to his house, and the fugitive company on board the sloop looked on as the increasing volumes of smoke rolled like an incense of wrath upwards to the heavens, and the shooting flames were seen consuming the humble tenement, with all that it contained. But this was only a beginning of a sad chapter of deviltries. Before the little sloop with its distressed cargo had passed beyond the island, the people on board saw by the vast columns of dense smoke in the direction of Norwalk that beautiful village, made dear to them by the associations of a whole lifetime, had been offered up as a sacrifice to the demon of savage and unnatural war. So indeed it proved. Their own houses, together with those of their neighbors had been burnt in an hour, and a happy, harmless and contented people made homeless, were left to wander amid the forests of their native hills, or become dependent upon the charity of their less afflicted countrymen. Old Captain W---- arrived safely at Stamford with those of his neighbors whom he had rescued, and lived many years after to be spoken of with gratitude and affection.--New Canaan, (Conn.) Messenger.

The late Mr. H. Hanford edited the above: My father, Levi Hanford, was well acquainted with said Capt. Whitney and has had freighting done by his boat.

He was also a soldier in the battle and burning of Norwalk and was one of the many who drove the British and Tory troops back to their boats. He knew Whitney and his acts there and elsewhere, and I have heard him speak of Whitney and his doings. There was a David Whitney, a son of Capt. Whitney, who lived and died in Walton years ago, who use to tell of the exploits of his father, David Whiney."

Captain Whitney was the grandfather of Mr. Raymond Whitney, now of West Meredith. His father was born in Norwalk, was a soldier of the revolution and moved to Walton in 1805.

AGED TRAVELER KNOWN HERE, CAUSES COMMENT.

The following clipping from the Ulysses, (Pa.) Sentinel will be of interest to Marengo people as Mr. Whitney is well known here, having lived here for some time and has frequently visited his niece, Mrs. A. L. Hale.

"It is seldom that one meets a person over 90 years of age, but Moses Raymond Whitney, of West Meredith, N. Y., who passed through Ulysses yesterday was 94 years old the fifth of last month. Mr. Whitney has spent most of his life in New York city and Brooklyn, his wife dying in the latter place thirteen years ago. Lately he has been traveling much alone. He has just visited Chicago, St. Louis and other cities. From Chicago he went out to nearby places with his sister, who is 92 years old. He came from Buffalo to Ulysses via Port Allegany, and went on from here to visit his nephew, D. B. Whitney at Mills.

Mr. Whitney is an interesting conversationalist. His mind is clear, has good hearing, good eyesight, and he walks with an elastic step, and stands as erect as a man of 25 years. His father David H. Whitney was a revolutionary soldier enlisting at the age of 18. His father's father was the owner of a vessel which carried messages for the government during that war. His mother's name was Nancy Raymond, and her father Moses Raymond was also a revolutionary soldier and was wounded at the battle of Long Island. It is certainly a pleasure to visit with this remarkable man."
